

Clarity First Workshop

In Clarity First, author and business performance improvement expert Karen Martin asserts that a lack of clarity costs companies, educational institutions, government agencies, and nonprofits billions of dollars a year. Beyond the red ink, this lack of clarity also inserts unnecessary risk, creates organizational drag, and causes customers to question whether the organization can deliver value.

In this engaging workshop based on Clarity First, Karen shows how leaders and organizations can use clarity to unleash potential, innovate at higher levels, and solve problems more effectively.

Participants will:

- Take an online assessment to learn the degree of clarity they and their organizations collectively operate with
- Experience (via simulation) the real-world impact of lack of clarity at both organizational and personal levels
- Explore the most common cultural obstacles to operating with clarity and learn how to mitigate them
- Learn key operational strategies and leadership practices for operating with greater clarity
- Experience how to use mindfulness and “clarity pauses” to perform at higher levels

